

GOOP

nourish the inner aspect

GET

“Going green” is no longer just the ideology of left-wing hippies. Nor is it a trend. We are living in exciting times. We are confronted with the challenge of sustaining our food, our water and our environment. We are changing things. It’s big. You know a movement is afoot when Windex® imposes a “green list” to regulate what goes into their products and Reynolds Wrap® launches an aluminum foil made out of recycled, well, aluminum. The more commercial it goes, the better off we all are, and not only from an ecological and environmental standpoint. Design-wise, inspiring options are becoming available. It’s a win-win.

Love,

Guybrush

Cocodot

$29.95 annual subscription for invitations, $12.95 per event and free greeting cards

Paperless invitations are all the rage and Cocodot takes it to another level. With tons of designs to choose from, Cocodot’s invitations and greeting cards are easy to send and excellent for the environment. Cocodot will be available to the public in July.

